

PharmaZzz: Cognitive Behavioural Therapy for Insomnia

Cognitive behavioral therapy for insomnia (CBTi) is a non-medication method for treating this common sleep disorder. Research has shown that CBTi works as well or better than sleep medications for treating insomnia. Many medical guidelines now recommend CBTi as the treatment of choice for chronic insomnia, i.e., insomnia lasting for longer than three months. However, CBT-I is widely underutilized due to a lack of familiarity, awareness, and especially accessibility to trained service providers.

PharmaZzz is a group of pharmacists who have taken special training in order to provide CBTi to people with chronic insomnia. In the process, they can also help people reduce or eliminate their need for sleeping pills.

If you think you might be a candidate for CBTi and would like more information, contact one of the pharmacists in the list below.
